DR. C. McLANE'S
Celebrated Liver Pills

In offering to the public Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills, as a remedy for Liver and Bilious Complaints, we presume no apology will be needed. The great prevalence of Liver Complaint and Bilious Diseases of all kinds throughout the United States, and particularly in the West and South, where, in the majority of cases, the patient is not within the reach of a regular physician, requires that some remedy should be provided that would not in the least impair the constitution, and yet be safe and effectual. That such is the character of Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills, there can be no doubt. The great success which has invariably attended their use, will we think, be sufficient to convince the most incredulous. It has been our desire wish that these Pills should be fairly tested, and stand or fall by the effects produced. That they have been so tested and that the result has been in every respect favorable we call tens of thousands to witness who have experienced their beneficial effects.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS are not held forth or recommended, (like most of the popular medicines of the day) as universal cure-alls, but simply as a specific for Liver Complaints, and those symptoms connected with a deranged state of that organ.

ROSSA SHOT.

A Young Englishwoman Puts a Bullet in his Back.

THE WOUND IS NOT DANGEROUS

The Woman Refuses to Make an Explanation of her Motives—She Proves to be a Professional Nurse from London

NEW YORK, Feb 2.—O'Donovan Rossa was shot by a woman this afternoon, about 5 o'clock, and dangerously wounded. He is still alive. He was in front of the Stewart building on Chambers street, when he was approached by a handsome young lady dressed plainly. She wore spectacles, and had the appearance of an intelligent school teacher. She drew a five-barrelled revolver from her dress pocket, and leveling it at Rossa, fired one shot. Rossa threw his hand above his head and cried, "I'm shot." He then fell heavily to the sidewalk. The woman fired the remaining bullets in her pistol at the prostrate man, and calmly and unconcernedly walked off, with the smoking revolver in her hand. She was followed by a large crowd, while a still larger mob surrounded the wounded dynamiter. City marshal, James McAuley, in the absence of a policeman, saw the revolver in the woman's hand and arrested her. She was conducted to the Twenty-sixth precinct station house. Her coolness of demeanor was remarkable. When arraigned at the sergeant's desk gave she her name as Yeslet Dudley.

FULL PARTICULARS OF THE SHOOTING

At twelve minutes after 5 this afternoon, Jeremiah O'Donovan Rossa, the Irish dynamiter, so-called, was shot by a woman on Chambers street, near Broadway. At that hour the streets were full of people homeward bound, making their way toward Brooklyn bridge. The excitement over the shooting, although the man was recognized by very few, was intense. The first shot fired took effect in O'Donovan's body, and he fell to the sidewalk. The woman continued to shoot until she emptied a five-chambered revolver. Only the first shot took effect. City Marshal James McAuley was present at the time, and breaking through the crowd that had collected, even before the shooting was over, seized the woman, who still held the smoking pistol in her hand, and told her she was under arrest. The woman offered no remonstrance, but allowed herself to be taken through the mass of citizens and to the City Hall station house.

George M Barlow, a merchant at 146 Reade street, and Peter Y Everett, formerly a reporter, who witnessed the shooting, accompanied the captor and captive to the station saying they would be witnesses.

ROSSA GOES TO A HOSPITAL.

When the woman ceased firing O'Donovan arose to his feet and made an effort to find his way back to his office on Chambers street, which he had just left. He said "I am shot," trying to place his hand on his back, under the shoulder blade. After a few steps somebody in the crowd suggested that he should go to the Chambers street hospital. A couple of men lent their arms, and O'Donovan did as suggested, and directed his steps toward the hospital. He walked all the way there, a distance of nearly a quarter of a mile. He bled considerably on the way.

Once in the hospital he was undressed and examined by Dr Fennison. It was found a bullet had entered the back, directly below the left shoulder blade. The doctor pronounced the wound of not a dangerous character, and began to probe for the ball.

A great crowd of people followed the wounded man down Chambers street, and blocked the roadway in front of the hospital. The door was locked behind O'Donovan and escort.

THE WOMAN

Meanwhile the woman had been taken to the station house with a crowd following her. She was placed before Sergeant Ross' desk. She was a good-looking woman, dressed neatly in plain, dark clothing, and wore eye-glasses. She appeared like a school teacher, with an intellectual face. Her manner was entirely composed, and she answered some of the questions put her promptly and without embarrassment. To others she simply shook her head and smiled, with a look which said, "I shall only answer questions I know you have a right to ask."

McAuley handed the pistol, one of small calibre, to the sergeant, and said he had seen the prisoner shoot a man on Chambers street. Volunteer witnesses assented to the stated fact of the shooting.

A citizen here asked, "Do you know the man you shot?"

"Yes," replied the prisoner, coolly, with an English accent. "I shot O'Donovan Rossa."

Further questioning by the sergeant elicited the statement that the prisoner's name was Yeslet Dudley, aged 25, that she was a nurse and married and that she lived at 60 Clinton Place. She was asked why she shot O'Donovan, how long she had been in America and other questions, to which she made no answer.

After her pedigree had been taken she was escorted to a rear room, and the crowd slowly dispersed. As there are no accommodations for prisoners in the city hall station, Mrs. Dudley was removed to Oak street station at 7 15 P. M. and placed in a cell. Her entire demeanor was that of a rational person, and a cool headed one at that.

ROSSA'S STATEMENT

Some time after his admission to the hospital, Rossa was removed to another ward. Here he thought his condition was serious enough to warrant him making an ante-mortem statement, and the coroner was sent for. When that official arrived O'Donovan made the following statement:

On Saturday, January 31, about 4 P. M., I received a letter at my office, 12 Chambers street. The message was in writing, and was delivered by a messenger boy. The note stated that a lady wished to see me; that she was interested in the Irish cause, and desired to assist it. She did not care to go to my office and remain waiting there until I came, she only would ask for ten minutes' time. The boy told me the lady was at the telegraph office, in the Stewart building, Broadway and Chambers street. I went with the boy, and I met her. I told her it would be well to go to some hotel, as the telegraph office was no place to talk in. We came out and went to Sweeney's hotel. We went into the ladies' parlor and she said she would be able to give considerable money if anything good was done. She then said she would call Monday, February 2. At 4 o'clock to-day she sent another message to my office, and I went to the same telegraph office, and there I met the lady. She showed me a paper which I was to sign. She then suggested that we go some place. We walked down Chambers street towards Broadway, and we got a short distance towards Broadway when the woman stepped back and fired two or three shots at me. One of the balls entered my back.

JEREMIAH O'DONOVAN ROSSA.

Soon after making this statement Rossa rested easier, and said he was hopeful of pulling through all right.

ROSSA'S WOUND

Rossa had been placed on a cot in the same ward with Capt Phelan, who was stabbed by Richard Short in O'Donovan's office over three weeks ago. O'Donovan was within eight beds of Phelan. Examination of his wound by Dr Kirby showed that the bullet had penetrated the back, about half an inch above the left shoulder blade. The ball ranged upward and inward, toward the spinal column, but did not touch the vertebra. The bullet is evidently lodged in the muscles of the back, and beyond a slight shock Rossa has suffered but little. It was at one time feared that the bullet had penetrated the lungs, but as the wounded man had expectorated no blood this was pronounced impossible. Had the spinal column been injured there would have been signs of paralysis, but none appeared. The doctors probed unsuccessfully for the bullet, and they concluded that no large blood vessel had been injured, and as O'Donovan is a fleshy, muscular man, of robust constitution, there was no danger to be apprehended. The doctors will probe again for the bullet to-morrow forenoon.

ROSSA'S ENEMY AND HIS FRIENDS.

Captain Phelan, who is still guarded by policemen, when informed of the particulars of the shooting, smiled grimly but refused to say anything on the subject.

The office of the Chambers street hospital was visited by a large number of Rossa's friends to-night, all of them determined looking chaps, and they gathered in groups of twos and threes, and discussed in whispers the unsuccessful assassination of the arch-dynamiter. John Rothe, whose dynamite operations have been confined to speeches in the Fourth ward, curiously eyed each visitor to the institution, and from time to time disappeared, to talk with parties on the outside.

Alderman J Sullivan, public administrator, had read the news in an extra, and dropped in to see if the story was true. He was not permitted to see Rossa, and vanished shortly after words.

W J Burke, a pronounced dynamiter, said: "You can kill Rossa, but you can't kill the idea."

ROSSA INTERVIEWED

To a reporter Rossa said: "It was a premeditated affair, and this woman was simply the engine by which the dastardly work was accomplished. She had no private revenge to gratify; no relative of hers had been injured in the English explosion. It is the work of the English government, whose policy has always been to assassinate men they could not otherwise reach. She is the agent of the British minister, or somebody else. This woman came to me and said she was Irish but her husband didn't sympathize with the cause of Ireland. She was rabid in her views on dynamite. She said the London explosion was no good, and wanted a horrible sacrifice of life to strike terror to the heart of Ireland's enemies. I told her I was not engaged in that business, and received no money for such purposes, but only to help the Irish cause. She reiterated that thousands of lives should be sacrificed in London. I had been to see my printer at 4 o'clock, when I started out to meet her. She wanted me to sign a receipt for money. The receipt contained the word 'dynamite' and I declined. I put the paper in my pocket and walked out with her. She is nothing more or less than the agent of the British government employed to assassinate me."

PATRICK JOYCE ACCUSES ENGLAND

Patrick Joyce, trusted friend of Rossa, came to his chief in the hospital shortly after Rossa was wounded. Rossa turned over all his papers to Joyce, and among them were letters from Mrs Dudley. Joyce was loud in his denunciation of the cowardly attempt to slaughter the great dynamiter, and charged it was England's work at once. "Of course it was some conspiracy on the part of England to rid the world of Rossa, whom she dreads and fears. There is no question but what agents of England in New York know all about the plot, and the woman was the tool selected to carry it into execution. They selected a woman for the deed because they had not a man among them brave enough to attack him. He has received scores of threatening letters but paid no more attention to them than he would to a flea. He is not dead, and England will find it out to her sorrow soon enough."

Joyce journeyed to the Oak street station, to see if he could identify Mrs. Dudley as the English woman who had been befriended by Rossa about a year ago. He was refused admission, but when he heard a description of the prisoner he concluded it didn't tally with that of the other woman.

Rossa's admirers were greatly relieved when they found his recovery regarded as quite certain. Walker J Elliott and Patrick Joyce went to Brooklyn, and broke the tidings of Rossa's shooting to his wife. She received the tidings calmly. She immediately started for New York, and reached the hospital at 10 o'clock, when she was admitted at once to her husband's bedside. Their meeting was quite affecting.

THE WOMAN'S CAREER IN NEW YORK

About 9 Mrs Dudley asked about the condition of Rossa, and seemed sorry when she heard he was still alive. A number of persons called to see her, but she positively refused to be interviewed by anyone. She discarded her steel bowed spectacles, which, according to Joyce, were used as a disguise.

Mrs. Dudley's career in New York is thus given: Thursday, January 22, Mrs. Dudley called at Mrs. Leggett's home for unemployed women, No 60 Clinton Place, and was met by Mrs. Brown, the matron. "Can you accommodate me here?" asked Mrs. Dudley. "Have you references?" asked Mrs. Brown. "My reference is Dr Thomas, whom everybody knows," was the reply, and then she added: "I am a professional nurse and widow, and desire to stay here until I secure an engagement."

In telling the story of her acquaintance with Mrs. Dudley, Mrs. Brown to-night said: "She impressed me so very favorably that I told her she might remain in the house if she would room with two other young ladies. This she consented to do. Her only luggage was a valise, which she never unpacked, because, as she one day remarked, she might be called suddenly to some patient."

"Did she refer at any time while there to her past domestic relations?" was asked.

"She told me she had been married and had two children, but that her husband and children had died abroad. Her father, she once remarked, had been engaged in the British cavalry service. She had acted as trained nurse in hospitals in London and Paris, and said she had diplomas from institutions of that kind, but I never examined them, though she showed them to some young ladies in the house. She was a thoroughly accomplished woman and her manners and speech betokened a thoroughbred English woman, of keen mind and bright perceptions. She was an intensely patriotic little lady, sarcastic and cutting at times when speaking of those who seem to be making war on her people. She was extremely near sighted. In telling me of her work abroad one day she said to me she more enjoyed hospital work abroad than the nursing she had been doing here. She said she had received $25 per week abroad, which I know is often paid to trained nurses."

"What is the history of the movements of Mrs Dudley while with you?" was asked Mrs Brown.

As I said before, she came here one week ago Tuesday last. Tuesday is our weekly pay day, and she paid her board up to last Tuesday. Tuesday she came to me hurriedly, and said she had a case, and was going. She would take her latchkey with her, for she might desire to return. She went, taking her valise, and by the way I never knew of her having a pistol. Last Thursday she return[illegible] antest mood possible [illegible] had died. The black-eyed young woman concluded by saying she believed Mrs. Dudley was temporarily insane on the subject of dynamite, as used against her country.

MRS DUDLEY'S REFERENCES.

The matron of Mrs Leggett's home did not know who or where Dr Thomas or Thompson was, whom Mrs. Dudley had referred to, but investigation proved that she had referred to Dr T Gillard Thomas, who lives at 294 Fifth Avenue. At his office it was learned that about four months ago Mrs. Dudley had come from England, in company with Miss Chalmers, who is living at 476 Lane, Newark, New Jersey. They brought diplomas from foreign hospitals, and Dr Thomas had sent them both to Dr P. F Chambers, at Dr Thomas' private sanitarium, 598 and 600 Lexington avenue.

Dr Chambers was found at this address, and in the absence of Dr Dubois, who has charge of the institution for Dr Thomas, stated that Mrs Dudley and Miss Chalmers came to him, not from Dr Thomas direct, but from Rosevelt hospital, where they had been employed. They were taken on trial November 21, and showed diplomas from London hospitals. Dr. Chambers was very favorably impressed with Mrs. Dudley, but she didn't work harmoniously with those in the sanitarium, and at the end of the month left without being discharged. Dr. Chambers would have been pleased to have kept Miss Chalmers, but she went, because Mrs Dudley was going. The latter was extremely patriotic, though not disparaging America. They left about December 21.

A young nurse at the sanitarium talked reluctantly. She had seen Mrs Dudley's certificate from Charing Cross hospital, London. She did not regard Mrs Dudley as right in her head. She boasted almost constantly of her ability as nurse. She had once said her youngest child had been dead two years. She never referred to her father or mother.

Superintendent James R Lathrop, Rosevelt hospital, said Mrs. Dudley and Miss Chalmers came here October 7, and both left November 15. Mr Lathrop was not favorably impressed with Mrs. Dudley, but he was much pleased with Miss Chalmers. Mrs Dudley's service was not satisfactory. She had some ability as nurse, but was deficient in order. She left voluntarily, as did Miss Chalmers and from Rosevelt hospital had gone over to Dr Thomas sanitarium.

O'DONOVAN'S CAREER.

Jeremiah O'Donovan has been a conspicuous figure in Irish national affairs for years. He tacked on the word "Rossa," which in Gaelic means "red," after reaching this country. After having been discharged from an English prison he came to this country, with Thomas Francis Burk, Dr Denis, Dowling Mulcahy and John Devoy, about 1869. He was engaged in a number of enterprises in New York, having been ticket agent for the Transcontinental Co. of steamers and hotel keeper. He ran for state senator in the fourth senatorial district, against William M Tweed, and was badly defeated. He opened a hotel at the corner of Chatham square and Mott street, which for a while did a good business, being a great resort for Irish nationalists, custom fell off, after a time, and Rossa was compelled to shut up the place. He subsequently founded the United Irishman, a radical dynamite organ, of which sheet he is the purported editor. O'Donovan is 53 years old, but is remarkably well preserved for his years. He has a wife and five children, and lived with his family at 23 Dury's street, Brooklyn.

THE BRITISH CONSUL INTERVIEWED

J Pierrepont Edwards, British consul, was found in his library at 44 East Thirty first street. He had heard of the shooting of Rossa by Mrs Dudley, but he had no details. These being furnished, he asked the condition of this wretched man. Being told he would probably recover, Edwards ejaculated: "Then he will become a greater hero than ever!" And then he added: "It is unfortunate that he should have been shot by an English woman, but I think the poor lady must be demented on the subject—she surely must be demented. I have never seen her that I can recall, and I know nothing of her."

The News at Other Places.

CONGRESSMAN FINERTY'S OPINION

WASHINGTON, Feb 2.—Representative Finerty said to-night, when he heard of the shooting of O'Donovan Rossa: "I am sorry. Rossa is a true man and a patriot."

When asked what would be the result of the shooting he said what would be likely to follow would depend upon what was the motive of the shooting. "If it should turn out," he said, "that the woman who shot O'Donovan Rossa is a lunatic, nothing would be done, although all true Irish men would regret such an attempt on the life of a brother patriot, but if on the other hand, it should be found she was a hireling assassin, then this would prove to be but the beginning of the vendetta. If Englishmen," he said, "thought to frighten the Irish in the United States by assassinating their leading men they would find Irishmen feared the lead of the assassin no more than they feared England's rope, and they would meet them at their own game."

ROSSA'S SON

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb 2.—Rossa's son John engaged in business here as a solicitor for the Young Men's Endowment Association, called at the Tribune editorial rooms this evening. The first he heard of his father's assassination was when the city editor read a bulletin to him. He remained perfectly cool, but asked at once for full particulars. Being informed that nothing further had been heard, he departed, refusing to answer at present any questions, except to deny any knowledge of the woman Dudley, who is said to have done the shooting. The news was a complete surprise to him, and he left hurriedly to send a message to New York, inquiring after his father's condition.

MISS CHALMERS AT NEWARK

NEWARK, N J Feb 2.—Miss Chalmers, who has been associated with the woman who shot O'Donovan Rossa, is in this city at 42 Plane street. Miss Chalmers was in bed when a reporter called, and the people with whom she boarded refused to permit her to be interviewed. They said Miss C came from England about five months ago, and while nurse in Rosevelt hospital met Mrs. Dudley and formed her acquaintance. About two weeks ago Miss Chalmers brought Mrs Dudley to Mrs. Sneyd's house.

THE NEWS IN CANADA.

OTTAWA, Feb 2.—In the house of commons to-night great excitement was caused among the members by the receipt of the news of the shooting of O'Donovan Rossa. The first report said he had been killed, and when further intelligence proved he was not dangerously wounded the feeling of disappointment was very marked.

MARK LANE REVIEW

LONDON, Feb 2.—The Mark Lane Express in its weekly review of the British grain trade says: The weather during the past week was spring like. Cumulative influences continue to operate in favor of autumn sown crops, especially wheat. Native wheats generally have declined 1s a 2s. Sales of English wheat during the week were 72,778 quarters at 31s 8d per quarter against 61,317 quarters at 37s the corresponding week last year. Flour and malting barleys are lower. Foreign wheats are stagnant and nominally 1s a 2s lower. The week's receipts of breadstuffs at London was unusually heavy, equalling 125,265 qurs of wheat. Maize on spot is easier, mixed American [illegible]. Friday was 6d cheaper. Seventeen cargoes of wheat arrived off coast, six were sold, three withdrawn, and five remain, two of the latter being California cargoes. The forward trade is nominal.

At the wool sales to-day 8841 bales were disposed of, chiefly Port Phillip and Sydney. The market was firm.

House.

WASHINGTON, Feb 2.—Under call of states the following bills, etc., were introduced and referred:

By Budd—A resolution directing the secretary of the treasury to report to the house what if any, regulations or instructions relating to the rights of Chinese to enter the United States had been issued by the treasury department since July 5th 1884 and under what law for the regulation or prohibition of entry of Chinese into this country, such regulations had been issued, that United States consular officers may issue certificate required by the act of 1884, to be issued by foreign governments.

By Cassidy—Granting all United States lands in Nevada, except mineral lands, to the state of Nevada, for irrigating purposes.

Randall called up the resolution providing that during the remainder of the session thirty minutes every morning shall be devoted to consideration of measures called up by individual members, if there are not five objections made thereto provided, that while this order is in force the speaker shall not entertain a request for unanimous consent at any other time.

Townshend made a successful effort at amendment, intended to facilitate the passage of the Mexican pension bill.

The previous question was then ordered on Randall's resolution: yeas 102, nays 68.

Keifer moved to amend, by extending to one hour the time to be devoted to consideration of measures called up by individual members. Agreed to.

At this point, and before final action was taken on the resolution, Collins moved that the house take a recess until 1 o'clock to-morrow. This was done for the purpose of continuing the legislative day of Monday, in order that an opportunity may be had to move the passage of the bankruptcy bill, under suspension of the rules. Filibustering ensued, and roll call followed roll call in monotonous succession, the friends of the bankruptcy bill being in a majority, ranging from two to six, and voting down every motion to adjourn. The attendance of the members, which at the beginning of the struggle was large, aggregating about 250, gradually dwindled away until there was but half that number present.

At midnight the house is still in session, with no prospect of adjournment. The time is mostly occupied with roll calls, the dilatory proceedings being diversified with banter, fun, humorous remarks, etc. During the day session, George presented memorials from the Oregon legislature, asking for the passage of the bill opening the Umatilla Indian reservation. Also for forfeiture of unearned portions of the Northern Pacific land grant in Oregon and west of Wallula in Washington territory.

WASHINGTON, 1 15 A. M.—Feb 3.—The house has just voted down a motion to adjourn.

Senate

WASHINGTON, Feb 2.—After the transaction of routine business the senate took up the Pacific railroad bill.

On motion of Hoar certain amendments reported by him from the judiciary committee were made to the bill, and the matter went over until Wednesday.

Consideration of the inter-state commerce bill was then resumed. Cullom said he hoped the bill would be completed to-day. If not, he would ask the senate to remain in session to-morrow until it was disposed of and would interpret a declination of the senate to remain in session to-morrow as evidence of its intention not to do anything at all on the subject.

The senate, 22 to 33, declined to strike from the house bill the provision relating to equal facilities and accommodations for passengers.

The bill provides that a railroad shall not charge more for a shorter than for a longer haul that includes the shorter.

Beck moved to amend this so as to prohibit merely the charging more for transportation any distance less than the whole length of the line than is charged for such service over the whole length of the line. He was trying to remedy one evil that was flagrant without attempting to regulate intermediate rates, with all the complications attributed to them. This amendment would stop the practice of "doubling up" charges on local business in order to make up what was lost on through business.

Plumb then moved to amend Beck's amendment, so as to make it apply only to cases involving similar circumstances.

Beck thought the circumstances different cases would hardly ever be so "similar" as to make Plumb's amendment necessary.

Ingalls said they might not be identical, but might be similar.

Beck thought this was a fine distinction, like that of a man in Buncombe county, North Carolina, of whom he (Beck) had been told by the senator from that state (Vance). The man referred to had expressed his willingness to fight any man size, weight and conditions being all alike. When the similarity of conditions was inquired into it was found he took a literal interpretation of the phrase. The man announced that in order to be qualified under the conditions imposed his competitor would have to be red-headed, lame in one leg, blind in one eye, must have been married twice, had four children by the first wife, of whom two had died of whooping-cough, and three by the second wife, of whom two had died of the measles. The Reagan bill, he added, was in accordance with the laws of thirty states.

McMillan said if the Reagan bill became a law the railroads would be obliged to regulate their charges for through freights according to rates for local freights. Very soon there would be a transcontinental line through British territory, the Canadian Pacific, over which the United States would have no control. In view of this fact, with the Reagan bill adopted, the west would find itself at an irretrievable disadvantage.

Without action on Plumb's amendment the senate went into executive session, and soon adjourned.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION

The Supreme Court's Findings in Favor of the Union Pacific Road

WASHINGTON, Feb 2.—The court of claims to-day decided the long-pending cases of the Union Pacific railway company vs. the United States. Chief Justice Richardson delivered the opinion of the court. Following is a synopsis of the points decided:

The amount allowed by the treasury department for carrying mails, being the same rates allowed by law to all other railroad companies, is fair and reasonable compensation, and not in excess of that paid by private parties for the same kind of service. The United States are bound to pay for transportation of their passengers, troops etc., from Council Bluffs to Omaha, over the bridge, and between Council Bluffs and Ogden the same rates paid by private parties, those rates being fair and reasonable, and the United States are not entitled to the reduction accorded passengers who purchase through tickets between New York and San Francisco and other distant places, unless their passengers purchase tickets in like manner. The company is required to pay into the treasury of the United States each year 5 per cent of its net earnings under the act of 1862, and under the Thurman act, since its passage in addition thereto so much of $850,000 as with said 5 per cent and the whole compensation for government transportation, will equal 25 per cent of its net earnings.

The full text of the opinion is not yet ready for the press, but the foregoing synopsis of the points was prepared by the chief justice. The total amount of the government's counter claims was about $89,920,000. The amount gained by the company under that part of the decision which relates to the construction of the net earnings clause of the Thurman act is understood to be about $700,000, up to the date of December 31, 1882, to which the accounts in controversy were limited.

UNION PACIFIC STOCK ADVANCES.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Union Pacific has just advanced to 55¼ on report from Washington that the court of claims has handed down its decision in the case of the government against the company, and that the decision was favorable to the railroad company, in determining what the net earnings are. The expenses paid out of the earnings and not charged to construction or capital, are to be deducted from the gross earnings, although they are partly in the nature of permanent improvement. In stating the account to December 31, 1882 the court finds approximately, that the United States owes the company $2,975,700, and the company owe the United States $5,734,392. Deducting the one from the other the United States are entitled to judgment on their counter claims against the company of $2,758,692. The accounting officers for both parties are to make accurate computations, in accordance with the principles and formula laid down in the findings, and this opinion and judgment is postponed until their calculations are made and handed to the court for examination for final action.

PORTER'S APPEAL TO THE PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Feb 2.—In response to the house resolution offered by Representative Slocum the president to-day transmitted to congress the recent appeal of Fitz John Porter to him, in his own behalf. The documents consist of a letter of General Porter to the president, asking the latter to nominate him to the senate for restoration to the army, or if the president believes that course not within his power that, by special messages the president refer his case to congress, suggesting that the action of the advisory board be carried out. With his letter Porter transmits a joint opinion by Joseph C Bullett, Joseph H Choate and Anson Maltby holding that congress has the constitutional right to restore Porter to the army. This opinion is in controversion of Attorney General Brewster's opinion, on which the president vetoed the bill passed by the last congress for Porter's relief.

UTAH

PRESIDENT TAYLOR'S SUNDAY SERMON

SALT LAKE, Feb 2.—President John Taylor spoke in the tabernacle yesterday. He referred to his recent trip, and said the saints were being persecuted in Arizona, and sent to the American Siberia for living their religion. He spoke of the federal officers here as sneaks and tramps, intruding with processes from the courts into the homes of the people. This was hard to bear, and forbearance might cease to be a virtue. Yet he advised his hearers to stand it a little longer,—did not want blood to flow just yet. There would be a change before long. He wouldn't give up the law of God, so help him God, and the congregation shouted amen. Persecutions were making some saints think of going to a foreign country to preserve religious liberty. There might be another pilgrim's day. He said the saints were illegally punished at home and killed in the southern states. No one was punished for murdering missionaries. He intimated that all must be silent on what they knew, and thus thwart the wicked men who were persecuting the people.

THE EAST.

Fight Between German Socialists and Police.

NOTES FROM VARIOUS POINTS

Discovery of an Assassination Society in Florida, Aimed Against Political Offenders—Some of its Crimes

NEW YORK, Feb 2.—Two thousand persons gathered at a socialist meeting to-night in Concordia hall, avenue A, the German quarter. It was rumored previous to the meeting that trouble would be caused by Justus Schwab and Herr Most, aided by a number of their adherents who intended to capture and control the proceedings. The less radical element of the party, headed by editor Schevitsch of the Volks Zeitung were determined to hold the extremists in check. A voluminous circular, printed in English and German, denouncing violence and Irish dynamite outrages, had been widely circulated by the Schevitsch faction, but it excited the Schwab-Most crowd, who in return issued a flaming incendiary appeal, applauding the dynamiters and threatening woe to England. Police Captain McCullagh, of the seventeenth precinct, attended the meeting with a posse of men. Schevitsch called the assemblage to order, and in such a way that a tumult ensued, in which chairs, clubs and revolvers figured. Captain McCullagh commanded silence, and forced his way to the platform followed by his men. Schwab saw him, and shouted "It's the police! kill the blank dash blank dash!" The infuriated mob turned upon the officers, and Captain McCullagh was struck on the head with a chair and knocked down. He regained his feet, and at the point of revolvers the police kept the mob away. The socialists then wanted to resume deliberations and were supplemented in their demands by drawing clubs, knives and pistols. Captain McCullagh was reinforced in a little while by thirty policemen. This enraged the crowd still further, and they again attacked the police, who responded with their clubs, and the rioters were badly punished. Many heads were cracked. With the exception of officer Rott, who was slightly cut in the face, and a few bruises, the police escaped injury.

THE "SUN" ON THE SILVER QUESTION

NEW YORK, Feb 2.—The crisis which many eastern journals and financiers seem determined to precipitate, does not disturb the Sun's equanimity. It says: "The banks may continue a little while longer to refuse silver, but as soon as their customers begin to take in any considerable quantity of it they have got to accept it, the same as other money, or else lose their business. If the hoarding of gold should become an epidemic the banks could not escape the demand for it any more than the treasury could. Their noteholders and their depositors would make runs upon them, and their stock of gold would soon melt away. This the more clear-sighted of their officers perceive, and they will do all in their power to avert it, besides, whenever gold finally goes to a premium that premium will be so small as not to be worth the loss of interest incurred in waiting for it. It will be as now in France, nearly nominal, for the reason that there will be so much gold for sale as to swamp the market. We may therefore safely trust to the self-interest of banks not to precipitate a silver crisis. Legislation on the subject would alarm the public, and thus do more harm than good."

MONSIGNOR CAPEL DENOUNCES DYNAMITE.

NEW YORK, Feb 2.—Monsignor Capel was given a reception at the press club this afternoon. In the course of a speech he made he said: "God knows, Ireland has suffered enough. I have nothing but the kindest feeling for that land. My mother is an Irish woman, but the methods of dynamite are revolting and inhuman. When thousands of Irish people, innocent too, are thrown out of work because of these outrages, is it not plain that Ireland's wrongs can not be redressed in this way?"

WALL STREET NOTES.

SOUTHERN ASSASSINATION SOCIETY

Political Opponents of its Members Murdered and Whipped

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 2.—The Chronicle's Buffalo special says: Alfred Bidwell, a former citizen of Buffalo, in good repute, who now lives at Sarasota, Florida, is charged with being a member of the notorious Sarasota assassination society. This organization is supposed to exist for the purpose of the secret murdering of political opponents, and is composed of twenty members, bound together by terrible oaths, to perform the bloody work of the band and to keep its secrets inviolate.

Bidwell is charged with being a party to the murder of C. E. Abbe. The society passed sentence of death on Abbe in April last, but deferred its execution until after the election. Several arrests were made. Bidwell is in jail, awaiting action of the grand jury.

Information received shows the assassination society to be one of the most atrocious organization ever heard of. A Dr Andrew was the ringleader. Many rich and influential men of Florida are said to belong to it.

The murder of one Reilly, several months ago, and of Charles Willard, recently, were said to have been the work of the assassins. The victims are supposed to have suffered for private as well as political causes. In several instances citizens of Manatee county, Florida, were waylaid and shot and their throats cut.

The Rev Mr Lowe of Sarasota, was whipped by the assassination society, because of a misunderstanding with his step-son. Many reports of the bloody work of this society are received.

It is believed here, where Bidwell is well known as a former prominent and upright business man, that he is the victim of perjury by his accusers, who themselves are the guilty parties.

Dispatches from Braidentown, Florida, say the community is greatly aroused over the arrest, and are determined to sift the matter to the bottom.

CALIFORNIA.

ELEVATED ROADS IN DANGER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 2.—The Bulletin's New York special quotes from the Herald a sensational article on the danger threatening elevated roads from the weakening of iron supporters and girders from crystalization of iron. It says that engineers and scientists are making the subject a study, and experiments during the past fourteen years substantiates the theory that the best of iron, when subjected to continuous strain, will lose its fibrous qualities and show a crystaline arrangement of molecules, and become as brittle as castings. All authorities agree that the enormous strain to which the elevated track is subjected will cause the iron to crystalize, and that the process cannot be detected by any outward signs. Theodore Cooper, builder of the St. Louis bridge, said the road is being strained just twice as much as it was intended to be. Other engineers express similar opinions.

VESSEL WRECKED

CRIMINAL CALENDAR.

PRISONERS DISCHARGED

NEW YORK, Feb 2.—William Butler, James Daly, Joseph Lamb and Charles Henry, the men arrested charged with having caused the explosion in the store of Garry Bros., on Grand street, early yesterday, were arraigned in court to-day. Several respectable witnesses testified to their good character, and the police could present no evidence connecting them with the explosion, so the court discharged them.

The Oregonian.

TUESDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 3, 1885

[illegible]

[illegible] the [illegible] department of agriculture at Washington [illegible] [illegible] sugar [illegible] from sorghum [illegible] It is possible that [illegible] the [illegible] years [illegible] reported his conclusion that the sorghum cane was unmistakably a sugar producing plant [illegible] of Kansas, and that even below this the sugar could not be [illegible] profitably. This was after a series of long and costly experiments. Perhaps the conclusion was not final, and Dr. Collier may have discovered the secret which has converted failure into success. Such experience is not uncommon in the record of scientific achievement. But in the absence of further proof there was some reason to be true. It is acknowledged, however, that what he says is entitled to great weight. No one has contributed so much as he to the solution of the practical difficulties in the way of making sugar from sorghum. In 1879, while as yet his famous experiments were only fairly begun, the whole product of this commodity in the United States was less than 12,000 pounds. Yet scientists had been wrestling with the problem for thirty or forty years. Last year directly as the result of his discoveries, the amount was 1,500,000 pounds—an increase of one hundred and twenty-five fold in five years. This substantial verification of the prophecies he made while in the service of the government taken with the handsome recognition of his work by the national academy of sciences, and the confirmation of many of his results by subsequent investigation in this and other countries establish a fair presumption that he knows what he is talking about. Although his abrupt dismissal from office in 1882 interrupted his valuable work, and while there are several important questions relating to the sorghum industry yet remaining to be solved, it is quite possible that Dr. Collier can back up his recent conclusions with arguments that would be worth hearing at the present juncture. It is gratifying, then, to know that the New York chamber of commerce, an organization already identified with the development of the nation's industries, has invited him to expound the theory. An important service to the country may thus be performed.

Even a near approach to a realization of Dr. Collier's anticipations would, as the New York Tribune says, be of immense importance to the people of this country. Nowhere in the world, except, perhaps, in England, is so much sugar eaten in proportion to the population as in the United States. Our annual consumption is 2,300,000,000 pounds. Europe, with six times as many people, eats only about 7,000,000,000 pounds. Leaving out the cost of refining the raw sugar when we have bought it, which would add from a quarter to a third to the price, and saying nothing of the 75,000,000 gallons of syrup and molasses we use, our annual sugar bill is about $100,000,000. Seven-eighths of this money goes to foreigners. If Dr. Collier's proposition is sound, we need not pay over $20,000,000 or $25,000,000 a year for our sugar; and every cent of this should go into the pockets of American farmers. Not only this in time we should be able to produce more sugar than we need, to undersell the growers of cane and beet sugar in other countries, and to build up a large export trade that would still further enrich American agriculturists, refiners and merchants.

THE ROSSA THUGS

It would be difficult for any humane man to avoid a feeling of satisfaction on hearing that Jeremiah O'Donovan, who calls himself Rossa, the editor of the United Irishman, the organ of the dynamiters in New York city had become the victim of the violence of his associates. It is only three weeks since Captain Phelan was stabbed in the most cowardly manner in the Rossa office. All the circumstances of that assault showed that it was the result of a conspiracy to get rid of Phelan, and that Short was the man chosen to act the part of avenger. The assault upon Rossa was also a practical illustration of the spirit which has pervaded that office. Rossa had about him a fiendish company, the members of which naturally had the greatest distrust for each other the only bond of confidence being the feeling that impels criminals equally guilty to stand by one another. They were probably all in mortal fear that somebody will expose the secrets which if revealed would cause them to be hunted out of society. The [illegible] of Rossa therefore was to have been expected. The only wonder is that he did not sooner become the victim of some member of the organization of skulking assassins, who have used our hospitality and the shelter of our flag to concoct and execute the most revolting and cowardly crimes that are known to modern times. The police of New York should now take hold of this matter and break up the combination which exists only for the atrocious purpose of carrying misery and disaster among innocent and peaceable communities.

Ireland has no worse enemies in the world than the Rossa gang. If they could all be sent back the people whom they have duped might have the satisfaction of dealing with them after their deserts. While they remain in this country they should be taught that it is only as American citizens that they are welcomed here; that this is not the place for thugs and conspirators. The country should be made too hot to hold them outside of its jails, for there is nothing here but abhorrence of them and their practices, and the sooner we are purged of them the better.

A long mooted question, brought to an issue in the house at Washington by the introduction of a privileged resolution by Mr Hurd of Ohio, reciting that the senate was infringing on the right of the house to originate bills for raising revenue by passing appropriation bills in the first instance. The bill struck at was the Blair educational bill, which passed the senate at the last session, and which is under the charge of Mr Willis of Kentucky. Mr Hurd made one of his vigorous and eloquent speeches, by far the best of the session, taking the ground that the right to originate revenue bills involved the right to appropriate the money raised. He was opposed by Hammond of Georgia, Reed of Maine, Long of Massachusetts, and others. They showed that in the constitutional convention the language originally gave the house the right to originate bills raising and appropriating revenue, and that the words appropriating was stricken out by a large vote. Moreover, the senate had originated appropriation bills for 100 years. This matter has for many years been in dispute between the senate and the house, and ought now to be definitely settled, as Mr Hurd's resolution was tabled.

A bill has been favorably reported from the senate judiciary committee to restore the jurisdiction of the supreme court of the United States over the writs of habeas corpus so as to allow appeals to be taken to that court in all cases which may be appealed to the circuit court. The effect of this will be to allow an appeal to be taken to the supreme court in habeas corpus cases in which the prisoner is alleged to be restrained of his liberty in violation of the constitution or any law or treaty of the United States, and deprive circuit courts of such jurisdiction as has been exercised in this city by Judge Deady in the cases of Lee Tong and Tran Wai. In other words, it will restore the law as it was before the passage of the act of 1867. This act was one of the measures deemed necessary to protect citizens in the southern states after the war by giving the federal courts more immediate control of the personal rights which the state courts were not always willing to protect. As there is less occasion for the law now, there seems to be a general disposition in the north as well as in the south to return to the former custom.

The Providence Journal says of the election of Jonathan Chase to the United States senate from Rhode Island that "it is rare in the history of American politics that a demand for public service has been so weighty, so unanimous, so representative of the highest interests and welfare of the state, and so thoroughly the product of that intelligent and unselfish interest in public affairs upon which the safety of republican institutions depends." There does not seem to be much prospect that a senator will be elected from this state as the product of "intelligent and unselfish interest in public affairs."

A DEMOCRATIC THEOLOGIAN

The recent death of Captain Isaiah Rynders, a famous democratic politician of the rough and ready type in New York city from 1840 to 1861, reminds the Rochester [illegible] of the methods by which the democrats in the north resisted the march of ideas which led to the overthrow of slavery. Captain Rynders was in early life a boatman on the Hudson, then was a gambler and fighter on the Mississippi, whence he returned to New York city and founded the famous Empire club which originally represented the roughs of the metropolis. During the administrations of Polk, Pierce and Buchanan he was a conspicuous leader of the mob which tried to suppress the free speech of Garrison, Phillips and Parker in the city of New York. On one occasion when Garrison denounced Zachary Taylor, Rynders jumped up on the stage, and seizing Garrison by the collar, said: "If you say that again I shall throw you off the platform." He then asked if free speech was allowed, and Garrison said it was. Captain Rynders turned toward the audience, which was half white and half black, and made a short speech, in which he set up the theory that the negro was descended from the monkey, and only partially developed as a man. Frederick Douglass, who was then a fine-looking young man, and a head taller than Rynders, stood up beside him and said he would leave it to the audience which was the ape and which the man. Captain Rynders replied that Douglass was half white. "O, then I am only your half brother," replied Douglass. Rynders was appointed United States marshal of New York city by Buchanan in 1857, and was conspicuous for his zeal and vigor in hunting down runaway slaves. When Lincoln was inaugurated his political career suddenly closed. The democracy became ashamed of him and let him go to the rear, where he would have lagged superfluous on the stage by the common consent of all decent men, if he had not afterwards become somewhat conspicuous as an amateur democratic theologian. At his funeral this fact was dwelt upon with evident satisfaction by his clergyman, who overlooked his sixty years of violence, brutality and vice. His last words were uttered in denunciation of Bob Ingersoll, and the clergyman therefore embalmed him as a stout defender of orthodox christianity. We can imagine the humor with which Ingersoll will refer to this defender of the Christian theology whose existence, and the existence of such as he are the only excuse for Ingersoll. Rynders believed in human slavery, was a gambler, a ferocious fighter, a politica ruffian of the worst type, and he sincerely thought that he was an orthodox Christian. His denunciations of infidelity and the parade made of the fact by the clergyman will feather Ingersoll's darts afresh.

The house at Washington has lately shown a disposition to change its rules so business may be facilitated. One amendment proposed is that a majority vote may suspend the rules and pass revenue bills. This is what Mr Reed, of Maine, proposed two years ago and he truly told the democrats that by the rejection of this very proper amendment, they showed plainly their fear to trust their own party. The mischievous two-thirds rule comes up every few days to block business.

The substantial unanimity with which the senate passed the bill to extend the time for the completion of the Oregon Pacific railroad and to secure it the privileges on the faith of which its construction has been undertaken, will be repeated, we trust, in the house.

BIBLE WORK IN PORTLAND, EAST PORTLAND AND ALBINA

During the time that I spent in canvassing the above named cities, I visited 4614 families, found 306 of them without the scriptures in their possession, supplied 138 of those found destitute with the bible, I also supplied 133 destitute persons and children either with the bible or testament. Of the families visited 3604 were in Portland and 1150 in East Portland and Albina. Of those found without the scriptures, 2?8 were found in Portland and seventy-nine in East Portland and Albina. I sold 282 volumes, value $123 85, and donated 158 volumes valued at $48 70. I collected by personal solicitation for the bible cause $60 80. As it may be of interest to many, I give the number of the families connected with the various denominations as they were given to me by themselves. I found in Portland 768 Roman Catholic families, 332 Methodist Episcopal families, 287 Presbyterian families, 285 Protestant Episcopal families, 150 Lutheran families, 159 Hebrew families, 123 Congregational families, 121 Baptist families, 82 Unitarian families, 60 families of the Christian church, 30 families of the Evangelical Association, 15 German Reformed, 41 United Brethren, 9 Adventists, Friends or Quakers 5, Church of Sea and Land 3, also 1 Mormon and Buddhist.

In East Portland and Albina the church relation of the families visited is as follows: Methodist Episcopal 168, Roman Catholic 150; Episcopalian 91, Presbyterian 81, Baptist 76, Lutheran 46, Congregational 29, Christian 29, Evangelical Association 12, Adventists 10, Unitarian 8, United Brethren 1, Jewish 6, German Reformed 4, Church of God 1. These statistics are incomplete as many families were not at home when the agent called.

I desire, in closing this report, to record my thankfulness to the families for the kindly manner in which they received the agent and for the aid that has been given to the bible work.

NEWTON DREW,

OLEOMARGARINE, ETC.

SCAPPOOSE, Jan 30

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Referring to the communication of D. D. Oliphant in regard to butter and butterine, which misrepresents the wishes of the dairyman, I would like to have my say, if there is no objection. The dairyman does not want to be protected from importation of butter. Neither are the butter makers of Oregon or Washington "lazy, careless makers of despicable stuff." The despicable stuff are his butterine imitations, marked butter, so that persons are afraid to buy butter, fearing that they will get this stuff. Nobody can or does import good butter that interferes with our butter, except perhaps in February and March, when California has green feed and we have not. But we can and do send butter there later in the season when it is hot and dry there. Nearly all of the dairymen in Oregon and Washington have had to dry up their cows this winter because they could not get more than 30 or 32½ cents per pound, not 40 or 50 cents, as "D. D. O." says. Twenty-five cents per pound will pay in summer on grass, but less than 40 cents per pound will not pay in winter for the extra feed and labor and I know by experience, as I have made butter this winter at a loss. What we dairymen want is a law that all shall put their names and the name of the stuff that they make on it. If "D. D. O." wants to make and eat bull grease, we don't object. There is no accounting for tastes. The old Indian said if all were like him they would want his old squaw. I would have a law making all makers of spurious stuff stamp their names on it. I would have "D. D. O." stamp his "D. D. Oleomargarine, Maker." I will stamp mine "Jersey butter from W. W. West of Scappoose."

SALEM, Feb. 2. The house met at 10 o'clock.

[illegible] bill to secure creditors' just division of estates was referred to the judiciary committee.

The prohibitory amendment was taken from the table and put upon its passage. Cox opposed it because he objected to saying by law what a man should or should not eat. He believed that each man should be directed in such matters by his own conscience. Presser thought the people should have the right to vote on the question. The amendment passed 40 to 19.

The delegation from Douglas county reported, with a recommendation that it be referred to the committee of the whole the bill to raise the salaries of county judges so ordered.

THE DAY'S WORK

The Railroad Bill Discussed—The Senatorial Contest—Etc

SALEM, Feb. 2. Hoult's bill to regulate railroads, being an almost exact copy of the Reagan bill with a 3 cent per mile passenger rate added, came up before the committee of the whole senate at 2 o'clock as a special order of business. The president called Hirsch to the chair which he occupied during the whole session or until adjournment for the day. At 5:30 consideration of the bill was by sections, and on each important section there was a tight division, over about 15 to 13 with the majority favorable to the spirit and provisions of the original measure. The opposition was led by Simon supported by Dorris, Haines, Trim, Siglin and Reed, while Hare, Myers, Davenport, Weatherford and Colman defended the bill in its original form. The ground fought over last week was again traversed, and the arguments were pretty much the same. The result of the discussion was a report to the senate, amending the bill so as to make the freight rate of January 1, 1885 the maximum rate fixing a 4 instead of 3 cent passenger rate, making allowance for unavoidable accidents, permitting a just sort of discrimination thought by Miller to be required by the interests of southern Oregon and adding a provision that schedules proposed by the act shall be published twice each year for periods of six months in advance and that they shall not be changed during that time.

THE SENATORSHIP

In the house most of the day was taken up with the reading of charter and other bills of merely local interest. The only action of importance was the passage of the Yaquina bay railroad bill which went through by an almost unanimous vote.

The only indication of the senatorial situation was the advance of the Hirsch vote to 22, and this is not thought significant [illegible] that Hirsch is [illegible] his strength [illegible] making a strong push for [illegible] on Wednesday or Thursday. The other candidates are lying idle waiting for Hirsch's defeat which they all confidently expect. The democrats have been caucussing all evening, and have arranged a program for the week in exact line with the course up to this time. There will be no departure this week from their policy of united action and their [illegible] laurels will be [illegible] about on different heads from day to day as before.

OBSTRUCTING STREETS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

You have given us late severely articles about obstructing streams. Now will you please enlighten us about obstructing streets. By what right can a private citizen use the sidewalk and about two thirds of the street for a whole block for his own accommodation? Madison street, between Third and Fourth, is thus appropriated by some person or persons, till it is an eyesore or nuisance to everybody who has occasion to pass that way. Have we a street superintendent or any other officer whose business it is to look after such things. By ventilating this matter a little you will greatly oblige that old and unfailing friend,

EXCITEMENT IN ROCHESTER

Widespread Commotion Caused by that Remarkable Statement of a Physician

The story published in the [illegible] from the Rochester, N. Y., Democrat and Chronicle [illegible] [illegible]

With a [illegible] [illegible] Dr. Henion [illegible]

[illegible]

Precisely. Thousands of diseases are [illegible] people to-day which are only [illegible] Bright's disease in some of its many forms. It is a hydra-headed monster, and the slightest symptoms should strike terror to every one who has them. I can look back and recall hundreds of deaths which physicians declared at the time were caused by paralysis, apoplexy, heart disease, pneumonia, malarial fever and other common complaints, which I see now were caused by Bright's disease.

And did all these cases have simple symptoms at first?

Every one of them, and might have been cured as I was by the timely use of the same remedy. I am getting my eyes thoroughly opened in this matter and think I am helping others to see the facts and their possible danger also.

Mr Warner was visited at his establishment on North St. Paul street. At first he was inclined to be reticent but learning that the information desired was about Bright's disease, his manner changed instantly and he spoke very earnestly.

It is true that Bright's disease had increased wonderfully, and we find by reliable statistics that from [illegible] its growth was over [illegible] Look at the prominent men it has carried off: Everett, Sumner, Chase, Wilson, Carpenter, Bishop Haven, Folger, Colfax and others. Nearly every week the papers record the death of some prominent man from this scourge. Recently, however, the increase has been checked, and I attribute this to the general use of my remedy.

Do you think many people are afflicted with it to-day who do not realize it, Mr Warner?

A prominent professor in a New Orleans medical college was lecturing before his class on the subject of Bright's disease. He had various fluids under microscopic analysis and was showing the students what the indications of this terrible malady were. "And now, gentlemen," he said, "as we have seen the unhealthy indications, I will show you how it appears in a state of perfect health," and he submitted his own fluid to the usual test. As he watched the results his countenance suddenly changed, his color and command both left him, and in a trembling voice he said: "Gentlemen, I have made a painful discovery; I have Bright's disease of the kidneys." And in less than a year he was dead. The slightest indications of any kidney difficulty should be enough to strike terror to any one.

You know of Dr. Henion's case?

Yes, I have both read and heard of it.

It is very wonderful, is it not?

No more so than a great many others that have come to my notice as having been cured by the same means.

[illegible] cured?

I know it can. I know it from my own and the experience of thousands of prominent persons who [illegible] both by physicians and friends.

You speak of your own experience. What was it?

A fearful one. I had felt languid and unfitted for business for years. But I did not know what ailed me. When, however, I found it was kidney difficulty I thought there was little hope and so did the doctors. I have since learned that [illegible] physicians of this city pitied me when I went [illegible] I was almost dead [illegible] words would have [illegible] Safe Cure.

Dr. S. A. Lattimore, although busy [illegible] on some investigations [illegible] health [illegible] courteously answered the questions that were propounded to him.

Did you [illegible] the use of Mr. H. H. Warner [illegible]

Yes, sir.

What did this [illegible]

"The presence of albumen [illegible] great abundance."

And what did the symptoms indicate?

A serious disease of the kidneys.

Did you think Mr. Warner could recover?

No, sir. I did not think it possible.

"Do you know anything about the remedy which cured him?"

Yes. I have chemically analyzed it and find it pure and harmless.

We publish the foregoing statements in view of the commotion which the publicity of Dr. Henion's article has caused, and to [illegible] that [illegible] which has been [illegible] the doctor was cured [illegible] professional [illegible] The standing of Dr. Henion, Mr. Warner and Dr. Lattimore in the community is beyond question, and the statements they make cannot for a moment be doubted. Dr. Henion's experience shows that Bright's disease of the kidneys is one of the most deceptive and dangerous of all diseases, that it is exceedingly common and that it can be cured.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

MCMINNVILLE, Feb 2, 1885

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Permit me to congratulate you upon your editorial of Saturday last, concerning the business outlook of our state and the country at large. You have touched the mainspring of our trouble and accurately analyzed our financial ailment.

We have in a measure undergone changes similar to those of our sister state of California, experiencing a period of prosperity followed by a period of adversity, the latter, however, becoming the foundation of permanent prosperity.

The ambition and sphere of enterprise of our capitalist has been the collecting of high interest, the majority sought to become rich by speculation and discovery, instead of the slow but sure way of industry and accumulation. Too many of our merchants conducted a loose and ruinous credit business. The value of real estate was based upon fictitious figures raised by greedy speculators, our farmers followed too long the old, wasteful and simple system of pioneer farming which, together with the high rate of interest on money, borrowed too easily, proved ruinous to so many.

This state of affairs could not be lasting, the point of culmination was reached and was followed by a period of retrogression. This period was predicted by THE OREGONIAN two years ago, cautioning its readers to prepare for hard times which would follow.

No community, state or nation can become permanently prosperous through speculation and discovery. The source of real wealth and real prosperity is labor, industry and accumulation.

"MERCURIUS."

Deputy sheriff, Mr James Brunt, Baltimore, Maryland, states: I suffered some time with a severe deeply seated cough. I tried Red Star Cough Cure. Never experienced such astonishing results. One bottle completely cured me. It is without an equal.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

An Absent Real Estate Man.—Elizabeth Irving commenced suit in the state circuit court yesterday against T. J. Matlock, H. D. McGuire and Mr. Logan, doing business under the name of Matlock, McGuire & Co., to recover the sum of $2215 37. Plaintiff alleges that she placed in the hands of defendants who were doing a collecting business, certain notes to collect; that between the 26 of January, 1883, and the 13th of January, 1885, they collected the sum of $3106. Of this sum only $700 has been paid, and plaintiff asks judgment for the balance with costs. Matlock and McGuire, two members of the firm, are now in Victoria, the former having left home a week ago last Saturday, and the latter following him last Thursday. On Tuesday last it was rumored in East Portland that Matlock had taken all the money belonging to the firm when he went away, and did not intend to come back. Gossips spread this report everywhere, enlarging it in every possible way, but positive proof of the truth of even the first statement was lacking. H. D. McGuire would not say for certain that anything was wrong, although he felt very much worried about the matter, and after two days of suspense, himself set out for Victoria to investigate. There are several things which do not bear out the pretty generally accepted report of absconding. Matlock made no secret of leaving, and paid out $800, which sum came due the day before, and really his absence has been the principal accusation against him. When McGuire returns the truth will be known.

Monday in the State Circuit Court.—The new rule adopted by Judge Smith, of the state circuit court in regard to fining lawyers whose motions are disallowed, or demurrers overruled works well and bids fair to prevent much useless delay in the business of the court. Heretofore motion day has not been long enough to dispose of the business brought up, but yesterday all the motions were heard before 9 A. M., and a lot of other business was attended to. There was an unusually large number of criminals arraigned yesterday. William Hayward, the young man who got himself locked into stores and then walked off with whatever he took a fancy to, pleaded guilty to three charges of larceny and waiving time, was sentenced to the penitentiary for one year on each charge. Ah Look, the unregenerate heathen who robbed the till of the Sne Sing Tong, a Chinese benevolent society, of $17, was arraigned, W. S. Beebe appointed to defend, and allowed till Wednesday to plead. Frank Winters, who walked off with a lot of felt shoes from Rottner's saloon, will make his plea to-day, and will be defended by W. C. Gaston. M. Mooney, who fired rocks at Thomas Johnson, was allowed to plead guilty to simple assault, and was fined $50. John Lawrence, who stole a pair of blankets from H. Marks, pleaded guilty to larceny, and was fined $25.

Something About Scales.—The spring time is coming and the close season for trout will come to an end by and by, which is probably the reason why so many "sportsmen" have trout on the brain at present. A communication was sent to The Oregonian yesterday, the writer of which scored the "Sportsman" who wrote a communication concerning trout, which appeared last Saturday in these columns. After exposing all the fallacies contained in "Sportsman's" letter, the writer went on to tell what he knew about trout, the first item of which was that trout have no scales. The letter went to the waste basket at once, and notice is hereby given to all who think that trout have no scales, that they need waste no time in writing about that fish, but had better commence studying up the subject at once. Trout have scales; all kinds of trout, both in this state and in every other state have scales. The scales are small, but can be seen without a magnifying glass and every trout is as completely covered with scales as a salmon or a sucker. There are many people who will doubt this assertion and for their benefit it is stated that eels have scales—all eels have them—regular scales, fish scales, and no foolishness about it.

It Works Against Them.—A case came up in the state circuit court yesterday, where a woman who had property in her own right was sued for a butcher bill contracted by her husband. It seems that the effect of the law engineered through the legislature some years since, ostensibly for the benefit of married women, was to make them liable for the support of their families if they have property of their own, and if their impecunious husbands order tobacco or beer sent to the house, the wife can be obliged to pay for it. Before the law was changed the married woman was not liable unless she made the contract herself. Under this law, women who have money should be careful how they marry men who have none.

Private Theatricals for Charity.—The comedy of "Caste," which was given by a number of society people at the residence of Mr. C. H. Lewis, last Wednesday evening will be repeated on Thursday evening, the 5th inst., at the residence of Mrs. Judge G. H. Williams, for the benefit of the Good Samaritan hospital. So successful was the first performance, that a general desire was expressed among the many friends of the ladies and gentlemen who took part, for a second rendition, and in deference to their wishes, the proceeds will be devoted to the benefit of the worthy institution above mentioned. Tickets are to be had at W. B. Ayer & Co.'s.

A Beautiful Fight.—The two Frenchmen and Dave Campbell, who had a fight Sunday, did not appear in the police court yesterday, and their bail, $10 each, was declared forfeited. A gentleman who saw the affray says that it was as neat a job of polishing off as he ever witnessed in his life. Either of the Frenchmen was larger than Campbell, and the way he knocked one of them down four times and "paralyzed" the other one with a blow under the chin, was much finer sport than any glove contest. Campbell was in the right this time, but he is too powerful a hitter to get into "scrapes" indiscriminately.

Suing to Foreclose a Mortgage.—Thomas O'Gara commenced suit in the state circuit court yesterday against Levi Knott to foreclose a mortgage on lot 5 in block 2 in the city of East Portland, and the Stark Street Ferry Company, O'Shea Bros. and the Willamette Steam Lumbering Company, who claim to have some interest in the land, are made defendants to the suit. Plaintiff states that he loaned Lee Knott $3000 on July 25, 1884, and was given a mortgage on the above named property as security. The money not having been paid, he brings suit to foreclose the mortgage.

St. Patrick's Day.—The Portland Hibernian Benevolent Society, held a meeting last evening and appointed the several committees for the management of their twenty-fifth annual ball. A special committee was appointed to confer with a conference of representatives of other societies, to be held shortly, to arrange for the celebration of St. Patrick's day. The meeting was largely attended and much good feeling existed. The society is in good financial circumstances and with the aid of their brethren of other societies, propose to have a grand time on the 17th of March.

Closed by Attachment.—The store of E. Wineburgh & Co. was closed by Sheriff Jordan yesterday. Suits were commenced in the State circuit court and attachments were issued against Wineburgh as follows: Emma Wineburgh, $5000; Neustadter Bros., $733 89; N. B. DeLashmutt, $5000; Metropolitan Savings Bank, $868 25; ... R. Dawson, $2830 52; Kahn Bros., $756 30. Mr. Wineburgh is at present in San Francisco and it is supposed will make an assignment. Total liabilities are $30,000 or $35,000.

Immigration in January.—There arrived over the Northern Pacific last month at points west of Spokane Falls 361 immigrants, and January is the dullest month of the year. The Northern Pacific bureau of immigration have received since January 1 an average of 200 letters of inquiry per week, almost every one from persons who intend to come to Oregon or Washington before May 1. It is not unlikely that the immigration in March and April will be heavier by far than any other two months on record.

Legislative Bills on Exhibition.—Senator J. C. Carson has sent to the secretary of the board of trade a file of all the bills so far printed during the session. Mr. Carson will continue to send copies of printed bills from day to day as he gets them. They may be seen by all interested at the office of Benj. I. Cohen assistant secretary board of trade, room 4, northeast corner of Front and Ash streets, up stairs.

Arrested for Larceny.—James Smith, formerly a cook at the Burton house, was arrested yesterday by Policeman Collins, upon a charge of larceny. It is charged that Smith stole a coat, which Policeman Barry found soon after in the possession of the man to whom it had been sold. The description of the man who sold it tallied with that of Smith, hence his arrest. He will be brought up for examination in the police court to-day.

Likely to Recover.—William Johnson, better known as "Grizzly Bill," who was shot by "Tung" Smith, near Glencoe, Washington county, at last accounts was improving. Drs. Linklater and Bailey succeeded in cutting out the bullet which had lodged against the thigh bone, and the patient rallied well from the operation. His assailant has not yet been captured.

THE FOREST GROVE GOVERNMENT.

How the Young Element took Away from the Pioneers the Control of Municipal Affairs.

A contested election case came up at Forest Grove about two weeks ago, no report of which has yet found its way into print. It was between the old board of trustees and the newly elected board, and the latter came out ahead. For years past the steady, respectable pioneer citizens of Forest Grove have been in the habit of choosing from their own circle a board of trustees. Elections have always been quiet and orderly, officers well chosen, and no little city in the country is more decently and honestly governed than is Forest Grove.

But a crowd of young men wanted a hand in the local government; not so much from a desire for power, as from other motives. They wanted legislative training, and, that, too, early in life and they argued that no place would be better for a start than their own home, with whose wants they were familiar. So when election day came, the young men held back from the polls until quite late. The old folks had polled thirty-five votes. So the young men marched up in a body and put in thirty-nine ballots for candidates of their own choice. It was the first time the old folks had ever been beaten in an election and it sort of paralyzed them. They proposed not to give up without a struggle, but they made a fatal mistake by issuing certificates of election to the young men. The charter provides that the old board of trustees hold office until their successors are elected and sworn in. It also provides that the board shall be the exclusive judges of the qualifications of members.

Both sides went to law over the matter. The old board engaged Mr. Thos. H. Tongue as their counsel and the young men employed Hon. T. B. Handley. By the way, the successful candidates embraced the best young men in town, of good families and excellent business training. One is Henry Jackson, son-in-law of Mr. Alvin S. Watt of this city; another a son of S. Hughes, and another a son of Hon. A. Hinman. A day was appointed for the young men to ... they should not be "counted out," and the council room was packed so densely that a person could have walked upon the heads of the crowd. The young men being armed with certificates of election gathered together in a separate room and were sworn in by Mr. Handley, as a notary public. They then presented themselves before the old board, and elected Mr. Jackson as their president. Their counsel then informed the old board that the new board having organized, and being ready for business the services of any judge and jury to pass on their qualifications were unnecessary. The turn of affairs provoked tremendous cheers from the crowd. This took the wind out of the sails of the old folks, but they recovered after a while and issued an order calling on the new board to appear before them on a future date. Four or five such orders were issued, but finally the old folks gave up the fight and allowed the youngsters to assume the reins of city government which, it is hoped, they will guide straight for the coming year.

THE STAGE.

Katie Putnam.—It is always a pleasure to welcome to our theatrical boards one who is so painstaking and careful and strives so hard to please as does that little lady, Katie Putnam. Her engagement here last year introduced her to our people, and that her sprightly acting and rollicking fun met with a cordial reception was evidenced by the full houses that greeted her nightly. She opened another season at the New Market theater last evening with the play, written especially for her, "Lena, the Madcap," and, despite the prevalence of an "Oregon mist," subsequently developing into a good old fashioned rain, the house was well filled, and a hearty reception was accorded Miss Putnam. The play is familiar.

The audience were well pleased with its presentation, there being a continual ripple of merriment current through the house and much hearty applause indulged in. Miss Putnam as Lena was the central character of the play, and her rendition of the mischief-making, fun frolicking and faithful, loving girl was excellently carried out. Each of her songs through the play received the honor of encores. Her duet, "Good Bye," with Mr. Murdoch, as Goody Mornington, her lover, is deserving of especial notice, and received recalls from the audience. Miss Putnam has a most charming, frank manner on the stage, full of wild freshness, prompted by the mischievous daring of a very lively school girl, and in her characterization of Lena last night did not fail to retain her hold on the popularity she has gained in the past with Portland audiences. Her costumes are very rich, that which she wore in the first portion of the last act being very becoming. Her support is ... well and carefully selected. Mr. Bosworth as the grouty old commodore, Mr. Devlin as Stufe, the negro servant, were excellent, and the remainder of the characters were all well sustained, and the whole performance passed off without a hitch to mar the success which it deserved. To-night we are to have "Fanchon the Cricket," with Miss Putnam in the title role, in which she shines. To-morrow night "Old Curiosity Shop," with Miss Putnam in the dual role of Little Nell and the Marchioness.

The Casino.—To-night, the last performance of "Prince Methusalem." A large delegation from Vancouver—military and civilians—are coming over this evening on the Lurline to attend the performance. To-morrow evening, first production of "Maritana."

EAST PORTLAND COUNCIL.

Tax of Six Mills Levied—Another Law Suit Threatened—Treasurer's Report—Resignation of Engineer Stutesman—Etc.

The common council of East Portland met in regular session last evening; Mayor Sanders presiding and all members present.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Following is a synopsis of the business transacted:

PETITIONS AND COMMUNICATIONS.

From C. H. Graham, asking sixty days further time to improve Ninth street in front of lots 1 and 2, block 202. Granted.

From S. M. Keenan (by A. W. Lambert), asking that action be taken for the payment of a warrant for $27 30 for the improvement of Ninth street in front of lot 8, block 185, the same being overdue. The recorder was instructed to issue warrants to the marshal for collection of the assessment. (The property in question is owned by Mrs. Mary Collins, who claims she paid the assessment and lost the receipt, but there is no record of such payment.)

From Fechheimer & Adler, stating that on the 15th of June last, Mr. F. Opitz paid a tax of $35 under protest, the assessment for which was void and illegal, and if not refunded they would commence action for recovery of the same. Referred to the committee on ways and means and the city attorney.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

From the committee on ways and means, reporting that, together with the recorder, they had examined, equalized and made necessary corrections in the assessment roll of 1885, recommending its adoption, that a tax of 6 mills be levied, and that the roll be delivered to the city treasurer for collection. Adopted.

From the committee on expenses and accounts, recommending payment of bills referred at last meeting. Adopted, and warrants ordered drawn.

From the committee on fire and water, recommending the adoption of the constitution and by-laws of Pioneer Engine Company as amended; adopted.

REPORTS OF OFFICERS.

From the recorder, reporting he has made a certified copy of the resolution requesting the Willamette Iron Bridge Company to remove the obstruction in the Willamette and given the same to the street commissioner for delivery; also, from the street commissioner, reporting he had delivered the same, and that the bridge company were complying therewith; received and placed on file.

From the street commissioner, reporting that William Teightmier had completed improvement of Ninth street, opposite lots 3 and 4, block 202, but that the improvement opposite, adjoining lots 1 and 2, remained neglected; received and placed on file.

The city attorney made a verbal report concerning pending suits. In the Hunsaker case regarding the L street improvement, the court had denied his motion to strike out that part of complaint setting up that the improvement had been abandoned on account of its not being completed, and that assessments were not due until such completion; and he recommended that the unfinished portion, between Ninth and Twelfth streets, be completed before the taking of testimony by the referee had concluded. In the Fay case, also concerning the L street improvement, a technical point had been raised by opposing counsel, which if sustained would defeat all the city cases except two. (The point, however, was not stated.)

Upon request, the street commissioner stated that further time had been granted upon the unfinished portion of L street, but could not remember for what length of time.

On motion of Wheeler, the matter was then referred to the committee on streets, with instructions to enforce the completion of the improvement as soon as possible.

The following report of the city treasurer was read and referred to the committee on expenses and accounts:

ORDINANCES.

Levying a tax of six mills for the ordinary expenses of the city for the fiscal year ending October 31, 1885; read three times and passed.

Allowing a fee of $100 to the city attorney for services in the Dalton suit; read second and third times and passed, Kindorf voting "no."

Declaring a deficit in the J street improvement fund of $230 20, and making assessment therefor; read second and third times and passed.

MISCELLANEOUS—MOTIONS, ETC.

The city marshal was directed to notify occupants of property abutting plank sidewalks to keep the same clean.

A communication was read from Harry Stutesman, tendering his resignation as engineer of Pioneer Engine Company, for business reasons. The same was accepted.

Wheeler then moved to engage Thomas Smith as engineer until next meeting.

Nicolai said Smith had proven himself "incompetent and a failure, and it was boy's work to put him back in the position."

Wheeler refuted the charge as being entirely unsupported by evidence.

The vote to engage Smith stood: Ayes, Kindorf and Wheeler; nays, Laing, Nicolai, Smits and Gruner.

A discussion ensued as to what constituted a "competent engineer" as required for the position, and a number of motions were made without second or effect. Finally, on motion of Kindorf, the committee on fire and water were instructed to hire a competent man for the position until the next meeting of the council.

On motion of Wheeler, the committee on fire and water were directed to renew the insurance on the city hall. Adjourned.

THE EAST SIDE.

The Ladies' Relief Society will meet this (Tuesday) afternoon at the Presbyterian church.

Washington Council, No. 3, R. and S. M., go to McMinnville to assist in organizing a grand council for the state.

Dr. Raffety's runaway horse has been heard from at Tom Cully's place, on Columbia slough, from whence he originally came.

A series of gospel meetings was announced Sunday evening in the Congregational church, and will be continued every evening of this week.

Harry Stutesman, just resigned as engineer of Pioneer Engine Company, has been granted a patent on his non-explosive rapid steam generator, previously noticed in this column.

M. Hunter, who has been laid up for several weeks with an injury to his knee-cap, the result of a runaway accident some time since, is able to get around with the aid of a cane.

The Willamette Iron Bridge Co., acting under the advice of Judge Deady, commenced yesterday to remove the drift obstruction from the east side, employing a steamer for that purpose.

Herbert Dalton, who spent the winter at the Cascades, for his health, has returned with the desired result only partially accomplished, and he will leave for some other section, probably Yakima, in a few days.

The smell of smoke in the Home hotel Sunday morning developed the fact that a carpet was on fire in one of the bed-rooms, though it had not reached a blaze. The fire was extinguished and no further damage done. No explanation was given.

The Drs. Raffety were pitched unceremoniously in the mud yesterday, by the horse running the buggy in which they were riding against an embankment, near the brickyard, while on their way to Albina. Beyond a good mud bath, they received no material injury.

Pursuant to the action of the council last evening, Messrs. Nicolai and Gruner, of the committee on fire and water, engaged Geo. B. Fimpel, who has acted for some time as assistant to Engineer Stutesman, as engineer of Pioneer Engine Company, Mr. Wheeler, chairman of the committee, protesting.

"ASSUMED TITLE AND POWERS."

To the Editor of The Oregonian:

Yesterday your correspondent "X" sought to criticise Judge Deady for calling his court, the United States district court for the district of Oregon, "National."

"X" has evidently just awakened from a Rip Van Winkle sleep of twenty-five years.

It is true there were those who a century ago succeeded, according to "X," in expunging the word "national" from the first resolve, (whatever that may have been), but we have taken great strides since then. "X" should be informed that in 1861 the same spirit undertook, not in secret, but openly and defiantly, to expunge not the word "national," but the nation itself. He should further know that with musket, saber and cannon the army and navy of the "government of the United States" wrote in characters of flame, beside the graves of a half million of heroes,

"This is a nation!"

The foundation of which was laid in 1787, but the growth and completion of which was not consummated till the rattle of musketry and roar of cannon had made possible a Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendment.

It will be a nation in a grander and more glorious sense when the national courts throw their protection around every citizen in all its domains, when every citizen may without fear exercise his inherent privileges of citizenship.

ONE OF THE BOYS IN BLUE.

LECTURE AND PIANO RECITAL AT Y. M. C. A.

The third entertainment and first lecture of the members and contributors' course took place last evening in the hall of the Y. M. C. A. A large audience was present, notwithstanding the unpropitious weather. Precisely at 8 o'clock the Sonate Pathetique from Beethoven's opus 13 was finely rendered by Miss May Cook. The lecturer of the evening, Rev. G. W. Chandler, pastor of Taylor street M. E. church, was then introduced by the general secretary, who announced as the subject "The Elements of Success."

The reverend gentleman was greeted with welcoming applause as he ascended the platform. The following is a brief synopsis of the lecture, which was delivered with great force and wonderful brilliancy abounding in witticisms and replete with humorous illustrations, which kept the audience at times in continuous laughter, and brought round after round of applause:

Nothing succeeds like success. There is always room for successful men. The men of today have a special interest in our theme. Duty done in even the small things of life brings the joys of success. Enoch Arden has been read, talked over and sympathized with; his sad story is familiar to all, but he who lives quietly at home with wife and children, enjoys by far the greater measure of success. Ambition, honorable and true, is laudable. One of the first elements of success is that man should study the sublime purpose of being. Scientific study and research fall into shadow while considering this plan. He who succeeds in this world must have a definite object and settled plan. Methodist ministers, however, are an exception to this rule, while believing in free will, it seems predestinated or foreordained that they shall ever be on the move.

Some men seem to be born to smoke. They finally take on a color, not of old gold, but more like the well dried hams that hung in my father's smoke-house. The young men who stand at the church door on Sunday evenings to see the young ladies home may find that the girls have formed a self-protective league to protect themselves, and be assured they will think far more of those who attend the services than they who stand without. It is easy to be nobody, but he who would make his mark must strive with energy to reach the goal. Labor-saving appliances are numerous, but he who thinks to win laurels in this day by the sweat and energy of others, will soon find he is making a mistake in more ways than one. Power, properly speaking, belongs only to workers. He who holds an elevated place must first have carved his way thither. In the path of success difficulties are the very best helpers. Plutarch tells that as the bees draw from the bitterest flowers the sweetest honey, so a wise man from his defeats gathers lessons which profit in the future. To be truly successful a man must have a true conception of the days in which we live. Many are the croakers who would have us believe that we are fast going to the dogs. We can and do admire the beauties of the past ages, but we are surely not to get comfort only from looking backward. To-day the fields are white for the harvest and the harvest is being gathered. We are on the eve of great achievements; a moral whirlwind is upon us; men of thought and action clear the way.

The closing selection, a march, "Hongroise de Concert," by Kowalski, was then most brilliantly executed by Misses May Cook and Blanche Hersey, two pianos being used. The selection, one of the most difficult, was faultlessly executed, reflecting the highest possible credit upon the talented performers.

The next concert in the course was announced to take place place two weeks hence, and to consist of vocal and instrumental selections by Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Coursen, Mrs. J. A. Child and Mr. Ralph Hoyt.

OVERPRODUCTION is the trouble. The bottom is knocked out of everything. Everybody weak and demoralized. This won't do; we want our good old times, when money was plenty, but how are we to get them?—that is the question. But we have only a few words to say to you all and that is this: We are overstocked in OVERCOATS.

We can't sell them in summer, and we want to sell them NOW, if they only bring 75 CTS. ON THE DOLLAR, NEW YORK COST, but we want the CASH—no tick business in ours—and if you want a genuine bargain in OVERCOATS come and see us. We mean what we say.

Orators of the Senate.

The three most voluble senators, Beck, Morgan and Plumb, neither write nor specially prepare their speeches, excepting to gather their facts. None of these three, however, makes any claim to the possession of oratorical powers, though each is singular in one respect. Mr. Plumb is the most rapid speaker who has been in the senate for many years. He and Senator Beck are the only men who ever taxed Mr. Murphy's power as a stenographer to the fullest, and many think Mr. Murphy is the most rapid stenographer in the world. Mr. Plumb's words are emitted with terrific speed. He sometimes utters as many as 250 words in a minute. Mr. Beck, while scarcely less rapid, speaks less clearly than Mr. Plumb, so that his words sound just as the posts of a Virginia fence look to a man sitting at the window of a lightning express. Mr. Morgan's speech is rapid, flows as continuously as a running brook, with much the same pleasantly bubbling sound. He never prepares nor revises his speeches. They appear in the Record precisely as he delivers them, and yet Mr. Murphy says that he never yet has found in them an error of grammar or of diction, and that as specimens of pure, classic English they are unexcelled by the speeches of any senator. Mr. Bayard does not read his speeches, but with exceptions almost all the others do. It did cause his Indiana friends some astonishment when Mr. Voorhees first unrolled his manuscript, but the custom is now confirmed with him. Mr. Pendleton, too, whose oratory used to be a delight to his Ohio friends, now reads his speeches. Mr. Bayard labors with a voice that is weak, almost effeminate; yet he is regarded as one of the most graceful speakers in the senate. He is more diffuse in his style than some others, but no man's diction is superior to his. Mr. Bayard follows the traditions of the schools. His oratory and gestures are accurately proper, and he never violates the rules in this respect. Mr. Vest is a flowery speaker. He has something of Mr. Carpenter's power of bedecking a legal argument with rhetorical flowers, and as he sometimes gets hot with conviction and the desire for impressing it, he seldom speaks without having the entire senate for listeners. Two of the most enterprising speakers of the senate are Logan and Ingalls, and for precisely opposite reasons. Logan is fierce, often when there seems to be no call for ferocity; Ingalls is cold as an icicle. Logan easily works up to white heat; no one ever saw Ingalls when he seemed to have an emotion. Logan wanders in his enthusiasm all over the fields of rhetoric, and sometimes gets mired in the swamps. Ingalls is always classically correct. Logan is effective when delivering sledge-hammer blows, and absurd when he essays sarcasm. Ingalls never attempts to wield the sledge-hammer, but his sarcasm cuts as keenly, quickly and deeply as a Japanese hari-kari knife. Ingalls stands like a statue, like the zero point personified; Logan dances and prances over the chamber like a hot-blooded savage at a war dance. Both of these men, however, are effective speakers, both command the attention of the senate and the galleries, and both effect their purpose in their speeches, for both make an impression.—[Philadelphia North American.

WELL!

The election is over, Cleveland, is elected and the country is ready for business again.

THE LA CAMAS WATER POWER:

Improvements are complete, and we are now giving valuable lands and franchises as premiums to men of pluck and enterprise who come to us to engage in manufactures. We welcome those who use but one horse power and can accommodate those who desire to use a thousand. Our terms are positively unequalled in liberality, and the advantages we give of themselves will constitute a handsome profit on any business, large or small. LA CAMAS COLONY, La Camas, W. T.

FOREIGN DISPATCHES.

CANADA.

SENSATION AT A TRIAL.

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 2.—Quite a sensation occurred to-day at the trial of George Wynne Richards, secretary and treasurer of the Reid & Barr Manufacturing Company, on a charge of forgery. George Barr, vice president of the company, the first witness, told a startling story of conspiracy by himself and Richards, to burn the works. At the conclusion of the evidence, Barr was arrested, and with Richards committed for trial. Both are grey-haired men, and hitherto very respectable. The forgeries amount to $20,000.

TAKING PRECAUTIONS.

MONTREAL, Feb. 2.—The Grand Trunk railroad, since the dynamite scare, has adopted all precautionary measures to guard the Victoria bridge, a company being formed with a capital of $200,000 to construct a railway around the mountain.

SOUTH AMERICA.

A STARTLING STORY DENIED.

PANAMA, Jan. 24.—The Star and Herald says relative to the report printed abroad that the French republic is endeavoring to obtain predominance on the Isthmus and in pursuance of this idea canal workmen have been divided into divisions in such a manner that a corps d'armée, 25,000 strong, can be massed at any moment, that the untruthfulness of this statement is apparent to every resident, although its origin may not be equally so. The truth simply is that in order to facilitate work the line of the canal has been cut up into engineer divisions which are again subdivided into sections.

THE SOUDAN.

LATEST FROM GENERAL EARLE.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—An official dispatch states that General Earle has occupied Birti, the rebels having deserted the infrenchments there. Two uncles of Suleiman, murderer of Colonel Stewart, submitted to General Earle Quisseln Pasha and a stoker on Colonel Stewart's steamer when it was wrecked and the party massacred, escaped from Birti and reached Earle's camp. Navigation of the river is very difficult, but Earle's forces are overcoming all obstacles.

EUROPEAN POLITICS.

SOME LIGHT PROMISED.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—A dispatch from Rome says the Italian foreign minister states that documents will shortly be published which will throw new light upon England's negotiations with the powers and to which he attributes a narrow escape from a great European imbroglio.

SCOTLAND.

O'LEARY AT GLASGOW.

GLASGOW, Feb. 2.—O'Leary, the fenian, lectured to a crowded meeting of Irishmen this evening. References to the names of Parnell, Rossa and Ford were hooted and cheered. A free fight ensued in the gallery, and was not quelled until the disturbers were ejected from the building.

GERMANY.

SOCIALIST MEMBERS COMPLAIN.

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—During a debate in the reichstag upon a memorandum respecting the enforcement of laws against Socialists, several of the radical deputies complained strongly of the tyranny with which the government enforced the laws against Socialists, especially in Berlin.

Workingmen in Germany.

Thomas Lemon, who visited Germany as a member of a workingmen's delegation from England, has returned home, and upon being interviewed by an English paper, makes a favorable comparison of German with English industrial conditions. With respect to the hours and wages of the working classes, Mr. Lemon has not time to collect any considerable mass of facts, but he discovered "that, though the hours of labor are rather longer than in this country (for the most part 10 and a half, with longish intervals for meals), the rates of pay are higher than I had thought. In Berlin, for instance, a laborer in the building trade will get about 4s 8d for a day's work, and men engaged in the manufacture of iron wire, an important industry, will make as much as 8s 6d a day, the system in this latter case being task work. The wages paid at Magdeburg did not influence me, as the sugar industry is at present in an exceptional state of prosperity. Then they don't labor there as we do in England; they don't work as if their soul's salvation depended upon the completion of their task. They take things in a very leisurely way. Watching some building operations in progress in front of the hotel at which we stayed in Berlin, I also noticed that in the course of the day the workmen paid frequent visits to a little cask of beer which stood in a corner—a custom undreamed of here. Another incident which impressed me was this: A sugar refinery which we visited we found closed for a month, according to annual custom, for repairs, and we naturally asked the proprietor who was taking us round, what became of his workers during these suspensions for repairs? 'It is not the fault of my men that the factory is closed,' he replied, 'and, as during the time it is closed they will have at least the same need for money as when they are at work, I pay them a portion of their wages.' Of course, this employer might simply be animated by the shrewd wish to keep his staff of workmen together. There appear to be no trade unions, as we know trade unions in this country. Whenever any movement arises among the workmen, the large shops first take individual and subsequently co-operative action; but there is no permanent framework nor permanent subscriptions. At present I perceive no prospect of any trade organization that is calculated to prove of value, either from a domestic or international point of view. My view as to the situation in Germany itself in regard to wages and the conditions of labor is that perfect peace and contentment exist. I went to Germany," concluded Mr. Lemon, "with a prejudice against its government and its people; but, being unable to compare the Germany of the past with the Germany of the present. I must say I would be quite content to witness in my own country such an ameliorative revolution as has taken place there. You may call it what you like—you may call it state socialism, or any other kind of socialism—I believe that it is a stage of development through which we will have to pass before the population of this country can reach the full measure of their prosperity, comfort and happiness."

Amusing Sea Gulls.

All who have inclosed gardens should keep gulls. They are not only useful in destroying grubs, but are also amusing companions. We began at Oakwood with a couple of herring-gulls, large gray birds, which my son (who is devoted to ornithology) procured. One which limped when it came, soon died, or was killed by its companion; we could not ascertain which. We then got a couple of small black-headed gulls, but these were soon killed by the gray gull, which my son was afterwards told at the zoological gardens might have been expected. When our men are digging the gray gull watches each spadeful, and at once snaps up every worm and grub as it appears. He is great in feeding; after half a pint of worms he is ready for bread or any chance frog. When his companion was alive and they caught a frog he was at once killed; then one took one end and the other the other, till either the frog was pulled in two or the strongest swallower got it down. He catches bits of bread splendidly; hardly ever missing even at some distance, though a pointed bill would not have seemed good for the purpose. I am sorry to say that he is of an unamiable temper on the rare occasions that he has had enough, and will not come to my signal. If I call Booby he at once rouses himself, and looks after crumbs rather than the robin should get any. He has a great deal of character. About a month ago the practiced naturalist eye of my friend, Mr. Hancock, noticed that he had not been properly pinioned, and the offer was made to do the needful, so we caught him in a landing-net, and my man held him [illegible] Mr. Hancock's scissors [illegible] part of the wing. I was [illegible] but the bird saw the difference between taking part and not, and [illegible] is past he will not come [illegible] though he is perfectly [illegible] me.—[Gardener's Magazine.
